

Man of the Year

James Scott Fields, or Scott as most of you know him by, was born in Philadelphia to his adoring parents, Judith and James Fields. Growing up he was active in the Boy Scouts of America and was a YMCA camp counselor. As the oldest of three boys, Scott was very protective of his brothers. A trait that he still exhibits to this day.

He went to Roxborough High School, and later attended Dobbins Technical School where he honed in on his skills in carpentry.

This eventually led to him starting his own business, J. S. Fixit Home Remodeling and Repair. Scott thoroughly enjoys his work, as it appeals to both his meticulous nature and his constant desire to help others.

Scott and his family joined Grace Baptist Church of Germantown in the summer of 1999. He was baptized by the late Pastor G. Daniel Jones on June 27, 1999. Being a natural protector, one of the first ministries that Scott joined was the Security Ministry. He also became a member of the Young Adult Ushers. In late 2011, Pastor Jones asked him to continue growing in his spiritual journey by becoming a Church Officer. Scott went through the Pastor's Officer Training Class and became a member of the Board of Trustees in February 2012. He shifted his ushering responsibilities slightly to focus more on the youth of the church, so he and his wife became Sponsors for the Golden Eagle Ushers. And since the start of the pandemic, Scott has selflessly offered his time and talent to the Media Ministry.

Scott has been married to his lovely wife, Alvis for 22 years, and they have two beautiful daughters, Tiffany and Jaden. Scott is an avid Philadelphia Eagles fan, rarely if ever missing a game and often discussing stats and game strategies with his youngest daughter. He is also a Marvel Universe enthusiast, an interest that he shares with his older daughter. He is loved and appreciated by family and friends for being the kind-hearted, caring, and compassionate man that he is.
